MONORAIL TRAIN leaves fair grounds for Seattle city centre with only whisper of wind to mark its passage. Trip of mile and one-half was to be made in 90 seconds, at average speed of 60 miles

SPACE NEEDLE THE BIG THING

By DON INGHAM

SEATTLE—There is no doubt that the Space Needle at the Seattle World's Fair is going to be the single most popular feature of the fair, just like its grandfather, the Elffel Tower, was at Paris in 1889.

It soars to a total height of 606 feet, where a gas flame will burn to welcome airline pilots for a distance of 60 miles.

At the 500-foot level is a restaurant, and above that is an observation deck, which in fine weather will provide a view "almost up to Victoria." There is a vast area behind glass, and in fine weather an open observation deck will permit visitors to step outside—if they dare.

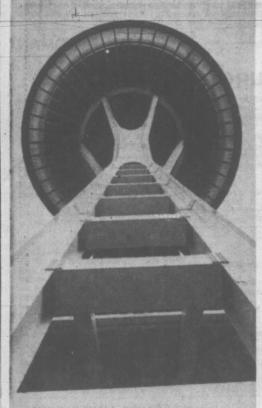

The most breathtaking view of all is that going up and down in the elevator. It has windows, first-comers are asked by spectacular elevator girls to "step to the rear," and the crafty will go aboard last and therefore be against the windows.

The Needle has three elevators, and they dally not. Then they are running on a schedule for the public they hould whisk crowds up and down with a minimum of

A charge will be made for the ride up. Lunch and dinner will be served for an average of $5 to $7.50, respectively, with a cocktail, which will not be out of line. The restaurant, under the observation deck, will be re-

The restaurant, under the observation deck, will be revolved by sun power at a speed of one revolution per hour. For those who like statistics, the Needle's buried concrete and steel foundation weigh upwards of 5,850 tons, and its centre of gravity actually is close to the ground. The tower is held down by 72 anchor bolts, each four inches in diameter and 31½ feet long. The structure itself weighs a little more than 3,500 tons.

There are two stairways, each with 832 steps. An employee reported it takes about 20 minutes to walk down from the top, but he had no figure on the time to walk up! The ride takes 40 seconds.

DOMINATING not only fair grounds, but all of Seattle and environs for miles around is the space needle. Gracefully curving steel beams are seen in this picture as they sweep outward toward floor of restaurant level in superstructure.

plans to make the Arctic liveable are highlights of Canada's big 12,000-square-foot exhibit at the Seattle World's Fair, which opened today. The art — caribou and kayaks, igloos and mukluks—is on the convex of a huge semicylindrical wall. On the other side of the wall is a model of the Arctic village Canada hopes to build in the future. This is a stunner, with tall, cylindrical living quarters, community centre under a dome, and harbor kept free of ice by the new air-bubble technique.

The running commentary is well done. When the talk is about the radar scanner, a spotlight cuts through the gloom of the long winter night of the exhibit and lights up the radar scanner.

The same thing happens for the oil well and the mine head, and when the commentator—taped, of course—talks about a freight submarine, up it pops.

Midways, rides, concessions, and "Show Street U.S.A." fill up the amusement and entertainment section of the Seattle World's Fair, which opened officially today.

Theme of the fair is science, but plenty of science went into the amusement section.

For instance, there is a ride which demonstrates centrifugal force. Those with the courage to go near it stand in a huge wooden tub, which revolves at a goodly clip, thus squashing the rider back against the wall—centrifugal force.

TWO ALTERNATIVES

Strength of the force then is amply demonstrated by re-moval of the floor of the tub. The riders remain squashed against the wall where they against the wall where they can either marvel on natural phenomena or feel sick.

Another ride with plenty of scientific background is called the "Flight to Mars," which seems designed to test reaction to a really scary exterior.

Considerable research and technology went into the lighting and sound facilities at Gracie Hansen's "Paradise International," and serious students of illumination will be interested to note just how interested to note just how pretty a bunch of dancing girls can be if properly lit.

after building there were "no admittance" signs because of frantic efforts being made within to get the displays ready for the opening today.

One optimistic official surrounded by coffee-drinking workmen under a framework of structural steel assured passers-by that his Puerto Rican building would be in operation by noon today.

Brazil wasn't ready to serve coffee, and France provided only a peek.

A Work of More Than Ordinary Literary Merit

Premier Bennett's displeasure in a national election?

He is creating a noisy diversion from the real issue before the nation by his election threats. The real issue is whether Canada can afford to ratify the existing treaty, or whether it should seek those better terms from the United States which the American government once accepted.

Surely, in the light of the latest revelations, there can be only one answer to that question. The treaty should be re-negotiated, as Mr. Pearson argues.

Until General McNaughton spoke out very late, and Mr. Elmer Bennett, the American negotiator; confirmed his statements about the

I have said about bad writing in canada. Today I am pieased to report the discovery of a work of more than ordinary literary merit, and my pieasure is doubled by the knowledge that it is not only from Eastern Canada, but from about as far east as you can go without breaking into a ragged breast-stroke.

Silhouetted in black on its orange cover appears the figure of a man in the costume of the middle 19th century—a kind of clean-shaven Abraham Lincoln. On his outstretched palm he balances a mannikin in military costume; the tabisu is illuminated by the title of this immortal work: "The Cape Breton Glant," by James D. Gillis, Author.

Author.

Mr. Gillis introduces himself in a brief autobiographical sketch, in which he tells us he was born at Strathlorne, "not far from the residence of John MacIsaac, Donald's son." The year was 1870. He went to school in Upper Margaree, and lists his schoolteachers; of the nine names four are Gillises, three are Macfarlanes, and the other two are a Macphall and a Macdougall. message of new life.

Of course. The introduction ends on a note—a rare one in this humble masterpiece—of self-satisfaction—: "Applicable quotations sparkle here and there, and where convenient are credited to their authors."

Chapter I sets the scene for the birthplace of Gillis's hero with a lush description of the Isle of Lewis where Angus MacAskill the Cape Breton giant was born in 1825. Chapter II rehearses the history of Cape Breton Island, with some animadversions upon the sinister-

At the time the book was written Mr. Gillis was teaching in Kiltarlity school, but in a disarming note he draws our attention to his cognizance of the fact that there is a world outside Cape Breton: "I was twice," he says modestly, "to the United States; I do not say so for the sake of boast."

In an introduction following the autobiographical sketch the author reveals the plan of the work. "The fact that as

It did not venture to oppose him on this vital issue but refused to make a second surrender when he demanded the alienation of the demanded the alienation of the Columbia's downstream power. Will it surrender there also to avoid Premier Bennett's displeasure in a national election?

Chapter IV takes the reader on a journey from Upper Margaree to St. Ann's whither Angus MacAskill was taken by his parents at the age of six. It is comforting to learn, of the road from Egypt to Gilander's Mountain, that over it "a buggy will roll and Jolt with some safety, barring accidents."

And who can compare with the folk of Baddeck, who "are exemplary. They are industrious, artistic and kind. Much and varied work and business is daily done. Loungers are few, Money is plentiful. In politics the voters are practical; decorum prevails."

Of St. Ann's we learn, with no surprise, that it has merchants who "are a fine set of men. They buy and sell fairly." But we look hastily to the publication date when we learn that they "have discarded the credit system long ago."

While American officials are chary about discussing these questions publicly, for fear of offending Canadians again, they do not disguise their private opinion that Canada misconceives its own interests in remaining alouf trave.

Canada, unlike the United States, had no ancient liabilities in Latin America. No nation there could distrust Canadian motives or fear Canadian power, as proved by the Latin American natio eagerness for Canada's membership.

Thus Canada could enter the OAS with a unique freedom from old quarrels, with unquestioned reputation and with a moral power out of all proportion to its military and economic power.

It would enter like a fresh northern and in the joint councils of the western hemisphere.

OTTAWA — After nearly five years of inservative government, the Tory party's eatest asset is still the man who made it possible, John Diefenbaker. The prime minister is a man of magnifi-

It is as simple as that.

Conversely, the tendency I note among those on whom Difenbaker impinges is that they either worship him or abhor him. It is not easy to be neutral. This is true even is not easy to be neutral. This is true even among his own supporters in the House of Commons. Some of them call the PM "the greatest living Canadian"—and if they were pushed they might drop the "living." On the other hand, some of his MPs detest him. One of the Tory doyens has described him as "the biggest phony in the House of Commons."

But even those who dislike Diefenbaker most intensely don't deny he is a tremendous political campaigner. Vain, with a bias that distorts facts and a regal predilection to reject advice that does not please him, he is nevertheless a political manipulator and a platform orator unmatched by any of his force.

His weakness may hurt him more than his enemies. The humility of 1957 has gone. In seeing only one side, his side, of any given question he alienates those who can see both. And his rejection of unpalatable reports and advice is isolating him intellectually, undermining his ability to make obtually, undermining his ability to make ob-

It is thus not the Diefenbaker of four and five years ago who will face the voters in the next eight weeks. Power has changed him, and with this change may come a change in the voters' affection for him.

In calling the election for June 18, the PM said he had been thinking in terms of Sept. 12, but that Liberal obstructionism forced an immediate vote.

It is true the Grits debated supplementary estimates for 25 days, as Diefenbaker said. What he did not say is that with no assurance of debate on the budget or the main estimates before dissolution, the Opposition had no alternative but to take what opportunities it could get for debate.

what opportunities it could get for debate.

Only a pledge from Diefenbaker was needed to get the supps through with little debate. He refused to give it, and in the absence of debate on the budget and main estimates, the time the Opposition took was well spent. Moreover, the PM's laments about blocked legislation fall flat when you consider that one of the bills the government chose to proceed with a fortnight.

A WRITER'S DIARY BOOKS

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

For the past 10 years novels have been appearing in Britain which are highly critical of the British educational system. Whether this reflects a national concern about education or whether (for novelists are terrible cogy-cats) it merely reflects the American fashion for writing novels about miserable schools and wretched universities. Leannot say for writing novels about miserable schools and wretched universities, I cannot say.

Of course, novels about education have been written for a century or more ever did not really need to know since education became respectable, in fact. For there was a time, which lasted until about the middle of the 19th Century in England, when too much education was thought unbecoming a gentleman.

A man of rank was expected to be acquainted with the skills or crafts.

however foolish he may be.

I think the rougher system of education is better. We are all fools sometimes, and it is the job of our pastors and masters to tell us about it. Life masters to tell us about it. Life the sometimes are the survive.

Education, like so much of Downes has hints of depths to which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life. A Yale University faculty of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life. A Yale University faculty of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life. A Yale University faculty of life, is a battle into which it might be worthwishly the rest of life. A Yale University faculty of lif is too short and egotism too strong for most of us to make the discovery singlehanded.

An amusing novel about university life in the newer English foundations is Old Hall. New Hall by Michael Innes. It treats the scramble up the academic ladder as a joke, which indeed it is, though the joke wears thin outside the realm of fiction. Men of business, who think that teachers are untouched by cut-throat competition, are themselves inhabiting an ivory (or perhaps a plastic) tower, remote from reality.

The bitterest of the What's Wrong With Education books I have been reading recently is The Teachers by G. W. Target, which, like the other books named here, has just been brought out in the Penguin edition.

It deals with a primary school in a poor section of London, and what ails it is not the system, or the pupils, but the teachers themselves. Yet they are not a monstrous group; their troubles are personal — marriage difficulties, training, inadequacles of personal — marriage difficulties, training, inadequacles of personal is menopausal abdabs, and all the fills that flesh is neir to. Canadian Star Wins Butterfly In Record 59.2

(Times News Services) SACRAMENTO, - Calif. (UPI) — Mary Stewart of Vancouver, B.C., only girl in history ever to crack the one-minute barrier in the 100-yard butterfly, set an American record of 59.2 seconds as she won the event in the women's na-tional AAU indoor swim-

Many fires start in the kitchen. Don't use inflammable cleaning fluids in this room. Watch out for grease fires. Do not use water to extinguish them. This will only make them spatter and spread. If the flame is small and confined to the pan, elamping the lid down on it may snutf it out. Ordinary baking soda is one of the best form of dry extinguisher.

New methods of finishing and sealing wood against moisture and swelling now enable you to change the shiny hospital look of the bathroom by panelling in soft rich hues of a variety of wood species.

It pays to inspect the putty on window sash at regular intervals.

Replacing portions that show signs of separating from the glass is good economy. Not only does it forestall complete replacement, but it is good in surnace against rot in wood sash and rust on metal sash. Be sure to use a priming coat on all areas that are to be reputtied. New putty requires several days drying time before painting.

MONTE ROBERTS

Mr. John Fraser,

Box 301 Fort Nelson, B.C.
Dear Mr. Fraser:
I received your kind communique Thursday morning, and believe me, it made me, very happy.
To think that you, way up there at Mile 300, Alaska Highway, should care about us, way down here below the 49th narallel.

49th parallel.
Yes, Mr. Fraser, your support of the SAVE FOUL BAY ROAD campaign is much appreciated.
Mind you, your coupon arrived the day after the matter had been settled by the Seven Wise Men of the Oak Bay Municipal Council.
In case the news hasn't filtered up your way yet, the Seven Wise Men held a council of war. Wednesday night, and when the smoke had cleared and the pipe of peace was passed, University Way was on its way, and Foul Bay is here to stay.

The Seven Wise Men, you see, found that, if they didn't do anything at all, and just forgot all about the nefarious plan to change Foul Bay Road to University Way, nothing would happen.
So they decided on this course of inaction, and I must say this is the most constructive lack of action I've seen in many a year.

But to get back to you, Mr. Fraser.

Your freely offered support for our campaign deserves recognition. I wish there were a prize for the Foul Bay supporter from furthest away, but this whole enterprise aupporter from furthest away, but this whole enterprise has been carried out in the strictly amateur spirit.

All I can do, then, is offer support if you ever have any name changing trouble up your way.

Let me know the minute somebody wants to change Fort Nelson to Highway City or Alcanville.

We have a whole bunch of "vote no's" left over, and will rush to your aid at the drop of a petition.

Yours in the comradeship of defenders of the

Oak Bay Taxes To Rise

Higher taxes appear inevitable in Oak Bay this year.

Council had hoped it could hold the line on 1962 taxes, but now it looks as though an increase is unavoidable, the reeve said.

DEBT RATE UP

The school requisition is up $54,200 to $627,707, but because of a $10,789 surplus in last year's account, the same 18-mill rate is likely to be set. The debt rate—last year 3.083 mills—is due for a small 3.083 mills—is due for a small increment to cover financing of projects.

Higher operating costs such as staff wages, and all other municipal contingencies must come from the general rate, which last year was 19.917 mills and therefore will inevitably be higher in 1962.

About $300,000 worth of local improvement projects are planned for later in the year, which must be financed at a 21 members of the Holy Ghost Fathers order were massacred by fanatical soldiers at Kongolo, on the upper reaches of the Congo River, last New Year's Day.

Originally the number of dead was 18 and Dean Weaver set his goal in the drive at $150,000 - or $10,000 for the training of each replacement. Even that, he admitted, might be difficult to achieve.

And he adds, "in capity, we can do something about what we have always been praying."

It's Easter Again!

Easter lilies, spring flowers and new Easter bonnets are in the vanguard of the day's festivities.

Sunday morning, it will be church—with all members of the family in attendance,

But later there will be breakfasts, luncheons and other parties. And, of course, there's the traditional visit of the Easter Bunny.

Smiles and bonnets herald Eastertime—Even for very young misses like Rhonda Keddle, who will be five on Monday, Easter would not be truly Easter without a new bonnet. While this miss may be thinking of bunnies and bonbons, too, it is the frilis and ribbons that have been so carefully primped and preened for the umpteenth time which are the real cause of that prefty smile. Rhonda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Keddle, 1844 Crescent Road. (Photo by John Bassett.)

ELIZABETH FORBES Women's Editor

Bunnies, Ducklings and Children-Mr. Rabbit delivered some little ducklings to this threesome ahead of his usual Easter Sunday morning visits. Andrea, 6, with brothers Guy, three years, and two-year-old Glen, were intrigued with the Easter tokens. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Prevost, 4902 Lochside Drive. New Two-in-One Outfits Last Word In Sportswear By PENNY SAVER

Weekend activities are beginning to take the form of outdoor recreation and most of us are starting to think about supplementing the sports outfits we have on hand.

If you're one of the thinkers and you've got your eyes on an extra pair of slim jims, don't buy until you've seen the reversible ones that are making an appearance here.

They are beige color with a pastel floral design on one side, and light blue on the other. They feature a slightly extended waist, back zipper and a small patch pocket on the back. Belt, that laces in and out of the slims at the waist is blue. They are only $10.95, in sizes seven to 16.

Matching blue shirtwaist blouses are $5.95 and blouses in the same beige print, in a choice of shirtwaist or overblouse styling, sell for $7.95.

To dress the outfit up a bit, why not add a reversible matching skirt. They've got slits on the side seams and are selling for $9.95,

If you'd like comfort of Bermuda shorts, you'll find them ongst the reversibles, too. They sell for $7.95.

Censorship is a continuing problem, Prof. Roger Bishop told members of the Women's Canadian Club, Thursday afternoon, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Kirk Hall.

"On every hand there are always those who want by hook or by crook to preventine discussion of issues which may disturb their settled economic, political, moral and religious convictions."

The harrying of intellectuals, or for that matter of any individual who tries to think for himself, has never ceased in the United States, Prof. Bishop pointed out.

"And don't for a moment think that it can't happen in Canada or in Victoria. It can and has.

"I fear such hysteria. It is the mortal enemy of everything I stand for as an academic man. More than this, it is the enemy of progress."

Prof. Bishop urged that it was the duty of every citizen in a democracy to understand.

For Bride-Elect

Thirty guests attended a teagiven for bride-elect, Miss Sharon Thompson, by Mrs. J. J. McRae in her home on Athlone Drive. Pink and white tulips and pink hyacinths formed floral decor, flanked by pink candles in silver candelabra. Refreshments included a cake inscribed with "Best Wishes".

Out-of-town guests who travelled to Victoria for the wedding of Miss Shella Elizabeth Mann and Philip Eward Pagdin this afternoon included Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Pagdin and family of Courtenay; Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Dowsley and Mr. and Mrs. G. Dorey of North.

Vancouver and Mrs. J. Brown of Everett, Wash.

What do they cost? What are they made of? Can they be worn all the time? More people are interested in and more people are wearing Contact Lenses than ever before, consequently us are asked many questions every day about these miracles of plastic. We have prepared a pamphlet which asswers most of the questions you might ask. It is free and we would be glad to send you one.

Doctor to Command Power Boat Group

BY DON INGHAM

New boss of the Victoria squadron of Canadian Power Squadrons is Dr. E. T. W. Nash.
A general practitioner, keen boatman, and enthusiastic exponent of water safety, he is best known among both his professional colleagues and boating friends as "Jack." He will hold the rank of commander in the squadron.

Elected with him were two lieutenant-commanders, executive officer Jack Simpson and squadron training officer Art Greenwood. Other officers are D. J. McMillan, secretary, and M. A. M. Fraser, treasurer. Both lieutenants.

First lieutenant of the squadron is John Hedley.
These men and their counterparts at Duncan, Nanaimo, Courtenay, and Campbell River will play an important part in the marine activities of Vancouver Island when they meet in Nanaimo June 9-10 for the annual meeting of the Island district of the CPS. Arrangements will be made by the Nanaimo yachtsmen.

New on the outboard market this year is the Maxwell Mariner, a five-horsepower, four-cycle, air-cooled motor which promises operating economies of 50 per cent over the conventional two-cycle motor.

It was announced at Phoenix, Ariz, this week that William T. Waggoner, Jr., 57, millionaire sportsman and cattleman, died at his ranch there Mesiday.

The report mentioned Mr. Waggoner's oil interests, and ownership of the well-kinown unlimited hydroplanes Shanty I, Shanty II, and Maverick (Gold Cup, Diamond Cup, Apple Cup, Lake Washington, Lake Mead, etc.), but did not list him as a B.C. property owner.

He was one of the American millionaires who have an exclusive island-owning club with headquarters off the tip of the Saanich peninsula. Mr. Waggoner was sole proprietor of Knapp Island, not quite one-half-mile long and lying between Piers and Pym Islands, less than a mile northeast of the government ferry dock.

Other "Lords of the Isles" are Capt. Fred E. Lewis, Coal Island; William Boeing Jr., Pym Island, and Paul Whittier, Goudge Island. Piers Island, former site of a Doukhobor prison camp, has been subdivided by a Victoria realtor into small properties for summer homes for people in more kumble circumstances.

WE'RE ALL AGAINST IT BUT WE ALL WATCH IT

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors, has chided Canadians for the contradictory views they hold as citizens and as members of the national viewing and listening audience. While few Canadians will defend violence in dramas over television "few will refrain from watching it," he told a Canadian Club luncheon.

On the other hand, there was vigorous audience reaction against the use of strong language.

"As long as the gangster, murderer, or sadist addresses his victims as if he were a graduate of McGill or Toronto he is acceptable; but should he be allowed to lapse into the forms of expression normal to these deviates, the living room is no longer a proper place for him," said Dr. Stewart.

New on the outboard market this year is the Maxwell Mariner, a five-horsepower, Jourcycle, air-cooled motor which promises operatingeconomies of 50 per cent over the conventional two-cycle motor.

Manufacturers boost the air-cooled feature as givenequal efficiency winter and summer—which means little to us here—and suggest that using straight gasoline instead of the two-cycle mixture of gas and oil will allow fishermen to troll all day without fouling spark plugs.

Headquarters of Maxwell Limited are at St. Mary's, midway between Sarnia and Brantford in Ontario. The firm, which is controlled by Mindustrial Corp.. It was announced at Phoenix, Ariz., this week that William T. Waggoner, Jr., 57, millionaire sportsman and cattleman, died at his ranch there Monday.

The report mentioned Mr. Waggoner's oil interests, and ownership of the well-known unlimited hydroplanes Shanly I, Shanty II, and Maverick (Gold Cup, Diamond Cup, Apple Cup, Lake Washington, Lake Mead, etc.), but did not list him as a B.C. property owner.

He was one of the American millionaires who have an exclusive island-owning club with headquarters off, the tip of the Saanich peninsula. Mr. Waggoner was sole proprietor of Knapp Island, not quite one-half-mile long and lying between Piers and Pym Islands, less than a mile northeast of the government ferry dock.

Other "Lords of the Isles" are Capt, Fred E. Lewis, Coal, Island; William Boeing Jr., Pym Island, and Paul Whittier, Goudge Island. Piers Island, former site of a Doukhobor prison camp, has been subdivided by a Victoria realtor into small properties for summer homes for people in more humble circumstances.
